Notes on this redaction

- This document is a de-identified transcript of a single outbound sales call. Direct identifiers have been replaced with the placeholder tags listed above. Spoken wording is otherwise unaltered, including transcription errors, disfluencies, repetitions and run-together speech present in the source.
- No payment card details appear in the source. The agent muted the recording before collecting payment information, and the customer entered card details directly into a web form. Consequently nothing was captured and nothing required masking in that section.
- Residual re-identification risk: even with direct identifiers removed, the combination of the provider switch, plan details and locality context may be sufficient to identify the customer to a party with access to related records. The recipient should treat this document as personal information and handle it accordingly.
- The retail provider being sold has been replaced throughout with the dummy label [PROVIDER_A]. This covers both the correct spelling and a mis-transcribed variant of the same brand in the source. Other commercial detail has been retained deliberately - the customer's existing provider, the mobile network named, the comparison service brand, plan pricing, connection speeds, modem model, the total minimum cost discussion and the recording-mute sequence.
- Redaction was performed by manual review with an automated sweep for numeric strings, email markers and known identifier terms. An independent second-party check is recommended before external release.
